OUR HISTORY

In 1824, Musgrove Evans led a small group of pioneers to the banks of the River Raisin, making Tecumseh one of the first pioneer settlements in the Michigan Territory. The area was ideal for such a venture. The river provided power, the soil was rich and fertile for farming, and the forests provided timber for the settlement. As the years went on, a carefully planned and bustling village began to emerge.

Today, the city of Tecumseh's historic downtown serves as an architectural storybook of Tecumseh, showcasing both the business and art that continues to flourish in this vibrant community.

There was a time when the clip clop of horses' feet served as the background music to downtown Tecumseh. Some things have changed, yet the essence of Tecumseh has remained the same. We are still a city alive with business, community pride, and a welcoming spirit.
